Skydiving in India? Government working on policy

The Indian Government is now planning to allow aerosports like skydiving in India. Among the activities being considered under this are gliding, ballooning, hang gliding, paragliding, para-motoring, aero modelling and of course skydiving, said a senior official.

The aviation ministry is working on India's first national aero-sports policy (NASP) to develop this in the country.

"Aerosports create significant opportunities for growth of tourism, employment generation and interest in aviation activities. A growth-oriented NASP may help attract investments in latest aerosports technology, infrastructure and best practices. With a view to prepare the draft NASP 2021, it has been decided to constitute a committee," says an aviation ministry order issued this Monday (January 4).

Hello Kitty theme park in Hainan to tap family tourism market

Keystone Group plans to build a Hello Kitty theme park there, the second in China after Anji in eastern Zhejiang province, which opened in 2015. The complex, spread over 52 acres (2.27 million square feet) in the provincial capital Sanya, will also include a 250-room luxury hotel, and is estimated to cost 4 billion yuan (US$620 million) when completed. Construction started last month and the park is set to open in the second half of 2024.

"We see a growing demand for family entertainment in China," chief executive Jeffery Pun said. "We aim to build a theme park that will be one of the most Instagrammable places in China."
